Death of J. F. E. Winkler.

Died, at his home on South street, Saturday morning, Nov. 12, 1904, J. F. E. Winkler, aged 79 years. Mr. Winkler had been in declining health for several months, and about three weeks ago suffered a slight stroke of paralysis. From this he seemed to recover perfectly but his general health continued to grow worse. He had been confined to his bed only about a week.

Mr. Winkler was born in Knaut-Kleeberg, Saxony, in September 1825. He came to this country at the age of 26 years, fifty-three years ago, and lived in New York two years before coming to Lexington. He was married April 12, 1858, to Miss Henrietta Kriebn, who survives him. To this union were born eight children, six of whom are living: Mrs. Jacob Fegert, Mayor Oswald Winkler, Albert Winkler, Mrs. A. W. Sandring and Misses Mary and Rose Winkler. In addition, Mr. Winkler leaves a brother, Henry Winkler, of this city, and a sister, Mrs. Wallenberg of Germany.

Mr. Winkler was a cabinet workman in early life. Nearly forty years ago he established the factory at the corner of South and 18th Streets. In 1888 the Winkler Furniture Company was incorporated and the factory enlarged. This concern has grown into one of the most important and creditable of the institutions of Lexington.

A long, useful, honorable life has closed, a life which illustrated the sturdy virtues of industry, integrity, and the religious spirit. Mr. Winkler was faithful to his work, to his home, to his church and to the public. His occupation was more than half an art and he devoted himself to his work as actively during the last year of his life as he did forty years ago.

The funeral services were held at the German Evangelical church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. M. Lissack. Interment in Maplehill cemetery.

The Wentworth-Kemper Game

In a game replete with sensational and spectacular plays the Wentworth team went down to defeat before the team from Kemper Military School Monday. The game was played at Marshall before a crowd of 1,000 extremely partisan rooters. Each school had brought their entire corps of cadets, including a band, upon a special train and each school upon its arrival at Marshall marched around the town following their band and giving vent to a score of yells and songs. Seldom has any town witnessed such a tremendous foot ball ovation.

The teams were very evenly matched. The Kemper team outweighed W. M. A. eight pounds to the man, but W. M. A. played a much faster game and displayed much better formations.

Capt. Bunting won the toss, and at exactly 3 o'clock Kemper kicked off to W. M. A. The ball was returned 10 yards. W. M. A. retaining possession of the ball began rushing it down the field by a series of whirlwind plays off tackle and around the end. Kemper was powerless to stop these rushes and W. M. A. soon scored the first touchdown by a smart off tackle, Van Ginkel going over the line. Bunting kicked an easy goal. Score, 6 to 0.

The ball was again kicked off and W. M. A. began the same whirlwind tactics and brought the ball again within 3 feet of the Kemper goal when a fumble lost the ball. Kemper then kicked off of danger. Up to this time everybody, even the Kemper enthusiasts, admitted that W. M. A. had the game. Kemper was enabled to score a touchdown before the end of the half on account of a fumbled punt in Wentworth's back field. The first half closed with everything in Wentworth's favor, no one doubted for an instant but that Wentworth would win the game. The Kemper men were continuously taking out time for injuries while W. M. A. displayed excellent physical condition and hardly ever called for time. At the opening of the second half Kemper by means of tackle plays scored their second touchdown. Wentworth then took the ball clear across the field only to again lose it when they were in striking distance of Kemper's goal by a disastrous fumble. Kemper again kicked off of danger and obtaining possession of the ball by means of a fluke on a long run scored their third touchdown. Kemper again kicked off to Wentworth. The Academy team then took the ball and began its steady march toward the Kemper goal line only to lose it on downs after a questionable decision by the referee. Here occurred the most discouraging play of the entire game. A Kemper back broke through the line and eluding the Wentworth quarter ran 40 yards for their last touchdown, making the score 23-6 in favor of Kemper. Kemper again kicked off to Wentworth and here the Lexington cadets again showed their wonderful moveline—"hurry-up" offensive work. They carried the ball across the entire field and over the Kemper goal line making the final score 23-11. It was now getting dark and the Kemper team were continuously taking out time for injuries so the referee called the game with still eight minutes to play.

It was a remarkable game in that Wentworth carried the ball almost twice the distance Kemper carried it and yet, Wentworth, acknowledged to be faster and stronger than Kemper, was defeated. It was simply a game in which two fumbles at critical points turned victory into defeat. Yet W. M. A. is not grumbling. They give all credit to Kemper for having a remarkably good team for a "prep" school. Seldom has any game displayed two teams with better fighting spirit than that displayed by these two teams yesterday. Capt. Bunting, Emery, Doty and Van Ginkel were the "stars" of the game, yet the entire Wentworth team displayed true varsity form and it is hard to tell which played the best game. The game was a remarkably clean one. Mr. Tucker as referee was extremely fair and efficient.

The Wentworth team arrived here Monday night in good condition. They have not had a single man removed from the game this season on account of injuries. Wentworth is endeavoring to obtain a game upon the home field for Thanksgiving.

A Library Evening at Central College.

The friends of Central Female College have been eager to build up its library, and through the years many valuable books have been presented. An annual fee from the students assists in keeping a few fresh books on the shelves and nearly all the leading magazines and quarterlies on the tables.

But larger things are desired. We would like to double the 2000 volumes we have.

In order to promote the cause, an evening has been set apart, designated Library Evening, and we wish to invite all who feel disposed to contribute to our book shelves to send their gift at that time. If the book does not arrive then it will be welcome later.

The date is November 28th, and on that evening the Faculty and Students will receive from 8 to 11 all the friends who in person can bring their books.

ALFRED F. SMITH, Pres.

Bituminous Macadam.

The St. Louis Republic thus describes the process of laying the new bituminous macadam pavement in St. Louis:

"Under the Warren method of preparing and malling granite bituminous paving the materials used are crushed granite and coal bitumen. The coal tar is prepared by patent machinery, which eliminates injuries or volatile oils, not by heat agitation, which would effect the tar's cementitious qualities, but by air agitation, which rids the material of useless oils, while it retains the oils that gives elasticity and preserve the tar's water-proof qualities. The Granite Bituminous Company, after the tar is thus prepared by the Warren process, mixes the bitumen with granite crushed into small sizes and so graded that when the combination is effected it is 92 to 93 per cent solid, there being only 7 or 8 per cent of interstices in the mixture which are filled by the addition of the bituminous cement. The bitumen is added to the granite in a heated state, and the two components, bitumen and granite, are then put into a revolving mixer, which causes the stone to be come coated with the bitumen and become a part of it. When cemented by the bitumen the produce has the hardness of stone, but it also has adhesiveness and ductility, and is water-proof and noiseless, which solid stone is not. Tar bitumen is a substance which is the most impervious to water of any preparation known, hence it absorbs no moisture either from below or above.

"The process of laying pavement as followed by the Granite Bituminous Company is first to grade the street, then roll the sub-grade so graded with a heavy roller. Next six inches of macadam are put down and rolled and then an inch and a half of finer macadam is added. On the foundation is laid two inches of the granite bituminous material and over that is put a dresser of light cement, and the final coat consists of granite screenings one-half an inch in size thoroughly rolled into the surface. A pavement so constructed is 8 inches from top to bottom and in every yard of wearing surface there are 250 pounds of granite. The result is a practically indestructible pavement, noiseless, elastic and gritty, giving a nonslippery foothold and being superior through being waterproof and more durable, to asphalt, macadam, or any other material. It has all the wearing qualities of granite. Asphalt is 94 per cent sand, which has not the structural strength of granite, and only 6 per cent of bitumen. As a consequence moisture penetrates asphalt and rots it very quickly. Granite bituminous paving, though more expensive to lay than asphalt, is put down at the same price, though it is laid in two-inch thickness, while asphalt is laid only one inch thick."
